National Charity's lightweight sandbag alternative

FLOODSAX, a social enterprise of the Brotherhood of St Laurence, has recognised that sandbags weighing around 18 kilograms aren't the most practical flood protection tool for everyone.

FloodSax, with a 5 year shelf life, each weigh 200 grams and provide a no fuss immediate response to rising flood waters.

Lorna Kahlert, a senior citizen from Kenmore in Brisbane purchased a FloodSax pack last year, and is amazed at how effectively the product works. "It's already saved me a few times from water damage after heavy rains."

"I've gone through the Council process of collecting sandbags. Being elderly, I found it very difficult as a-100-year' event but University of Southern Queensland climatologist Roger Stone says a repeat is possible.

"The rain we're getting at the moment is just a foretaste, you might say. It's just a little warning of things to come for the summer," he said.

With hundreds of millions of dollars of flood damage already caused in Queensland this year, being 'Flood Ready' has never been more important.

By investing in FloodSax, you can safeguard your home against the threat of rising flood waters quickly with ease, while helping fund the work of one of Australia's most respected not-for-profit organisations.

full sandbags are quite heavy and hard to manoeuvre. FloodSax are much better for me." The floods were described as a 'once-in-

Public Transport changes in Queensland

SENIORS and pensioners will be eligible for some free journeys under new fare arrangements that come into effect early next year but overall prices for travel will be going up.

Under the changes to take place from January next year single paper tickets will be retained to ensure all infrequent users and tourists will be able to easily access public transport; any journey made by 'go card' for seniors and pensioners in excess of two journeys in the one day will be free; 'go card' fares and single paper ticket fares will increase by 15 per cent as announced in October 2009. While pleased with retaining paper tickets for infrequent users (regional) and a partial win with free off peak travel, the National Seniors Queensland State Policy Group still believes there is an advantage in providing 'go card' outlets for regional people (because of the difference in discounts) and to keep seeking free off peak travel for concession card holders.

It was agreed to retain these two recommendations in the next Queensland budget submission. Courtesy National Seniors 'Connect'
